THE LAMP OF LOVE.

Its Flame Burning Brightly After a Lapse of Forty-five Years. Last evening at the parsonage of the Presbyterian church by Rev. Jas. Y.

Mitchell, Emmor C. Jeffries and Martha C. Hanway, both of Chester county, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The happy bridegroom is 65 years of age and his blushing bride is 62. Besides the mature years of the high contracting parties to the alliance there are other features that give to the event an interest even greater than that which usually attaches five years ago the present bride and groom youth, burning with ardent affection that is characteristic of the period of adolescence, and the courtship gave every promise of a happy termination in the union of the two young lives. Poets sing, and philosophers teach, and stern experience frequently proves, that the course of true love runs not with unrippled smoothness, and in this case the old saw was verified. The young lovers drifted apart, and the old story was re-enacted, the finis written, and the volume clasped forever to all appearances. He married a wife in this city in 1839, and s'ie gave her hand to another suitor. Children were born unto both of them and the past, though it may not have been entirely blotted from the book of remembrance. was as a dream that is over. Years rolled swiftly by, and our hero's wife sickened and died. Obeying the apostolic injunction that it is not well for man to be alone, he chose unto himself another helpmeet. and the years continued to glide smoothly by, and honors and reward came to crown a useful career. A second bereavement came to the husband, and he was again a widower. In the meantime our heroine, the girl sweetheart of the early part of this romantic narrative, had, by a dispensation of providence, been called upon to assume the widow's weeds, and late years, when the golden suntints were beginning to streak horizon of their lives, the lovers of nearly half a century before found themselves alone and far apart, yet with the subtle power of past happy associations attracting each to the other with a force that was irresistible. So it came to pass that after the lapse of forty-five years, during which period each had married and raised families, the old flame was fanned into new life and found plenty of mutual love to feed upon; and how could our romance have a nicer ending than in the quiet little ceremony performed in the parsonage parlor last evening, with the principal actors back to their first love, in the promise of many years of future happi-

KICKED BY A HORSE.

A Man Has His Skull Fractured. This morning L. Q. Landram, who resides at No. 355 North Queen street, was badly injured by being kicked by a horse as it is supposed. Mr. Landram and his sons work at a blacksmith shop in Christian street, near Chestnut, and in the same building two horses are kept by them. This morning Mr. Landram went to the shop before his sons. Shortly afterwards one of the latter came to work, when he found his father lying in the shop in an unconscious condition and bleeding freely to the tying of the nuptial knot. Forty- from a wound in the head. He was quickly removed to his home and were devoted lovers in the full vigor Dr. S. T. Davis was sent for, who examined the wound, which is above the left eye. The skull was found to be fractured, and the mark left on the head indicates that it was made by the cork of a horse shoe. Mr. Landram, although not altogether unconscious, is not able to give any account of the affair, but from what he has stated there is scarcely any doubt that one of the horses kicked him. It is very likely that in going through the door from the shop into the stable he was struck by the animal.

CHRISTIANITY AND INFIDELITY. A Colored Bishop's Reply to Ingersoll.

Bishop A. W. Wayman, of the African Methodist Episcopal church, lectured last night at Bethel church, Baltimore, to a large audience, his remarks being a reply to the attacks of Col. Robert G. Ingersoil on the Bible. Among those present were a large number of white people, who listened to the remarks the speaker with the closest at-The bishop commenced referring to Col. Ingersoll's famous lecture on "Hell," which, he said, was fallacious and sophistical and without reason or argument. The statement of Col. Ingersoll that his attack on the Bible was owing to the book being the enemy of womanhood, the bishop said was unreasonable, as whatever Christian women are to-day they owe to the influence of the Bible. Ingersoll's statements to the Ingersoll's statements to ihe country notwithstanding. All the world over the effects of the Bible were to be seen. The Bible found Ireland in the thirteenth century almost without an alphabet and in four hundred years there were men in Ireland famous for their learning. Queen Victoria, when asked to what she attributed the prosperity of her country, replied that the Bible was the secret of it. To count the men who owe their greatness to Christ would be beyond the power of an archangel. not be explained, but Col. Ingersoll accepts the reasoning of the astronomers who tell him that the constellations are full of mysteries. He feels and realizes the movement of the wind, but cannot find the motive power-yet he cannot accept the mysteries of the Bible. In conclusion he wished to say to old and young men and women, fold maids and old bachelors [laughter] and every one else, cling to the Bible and not to the sayings of Col. Ingersoll or any of his class. The doctrine of the latter had never brought contentment to any, and the lives of all his followers were full of melancholy. As an instance of the universal faith in the Bible he would call attention to the fact that every court of law in the world would accept a dying declararation on the Bible, on the presumption that the deponent, no matter how great a falsifier while living, would always tell the truth when dying. The bishop then quoted the dying declarations of a number of well-known atheists, comparing them to the utterances recognizing him as the representative of of Christians and showing the great ad-

Brandy as a Medicine. The following article was voluntarily sent to Mr. H. E. Slaymaker, Agent for Reigart's Old Wine Store, by a prominent practising physician of this county, who has extensively used the Brandy referred to in his regular practice. It is commended to the attention of those af-

Indigestion and Dyspepsia. BRANDY AS A MEDICINE. This now much abused Alcoholic Stimulant was never intended as a beverage, but to be used as a medicine of great potency in the cure sweep away their annual thousands of victims.
With a purely phflanthropic motive we present to the favorable notice of invalids—especially those afflicted with that miserable dis-

Brandy.

The aged, with feeble appetite and more or less debility, will find this simple medicine, when used properly, A Sovereign Remedy or all their ills and aches. Be it, however, strictly understood that we prescribe and but one article, and that is; REIGART'S OLD BRANDY,

Brandy has stood the test for TRADE MARK. years, and has never failed, as far as our experience extends, and we therefore give it the preference over all other Brandies, no matter with how many jaw-breaking French titles they are branded. One-fourth of the money that is yearly thrown away on various impotent dyspepsia specifics would suffice to buy all the Brandy to cure any such case or

A hard-working farmer had been afflicted A hard-working farmer had been afflicted with an exhaustive Dyspepsia for a number of years; his stomach would reject almost every kind of food; he had sour cructations constantly—no appetite—in fact, he was obliged to restrict his diet to crackers and stale bread, and as a beverage he used McGrann's Root Beer. He is a Methodist, and then, as flow, preached at times, and in his discourses often declaimed earnestly against all kinds of strong drink. When advised to try Reigart's Old Brandy, In his case, he looked up with astonishment, but after hearing of its wonderful effects in the cases of some of his near acquaintances, he at last consented to follow our advice. He used the Brandy faithfully and steadily; the first bottle giving him an appetite, and before the second was taken he was a sound man with he second was taken he was a sound man, with a stomach capable of digesting anything which he chose to eat. He still keeps it and uses a lit-tle occasionally; and since he has this medi-cine he has been of very little pecuniary bene-fit to the doctor.—A Practising Physician.
